A SPRINGFIELD MAN HONORED IN

The Rev. Lemon L. Uhl, a graduate o the literary and theological departments of Wittenberg College, lest this city for India, for service as a missionary, eleven years ago and is now on his way home, having taken his leave of his many friends n Hindostan on the 16th of March. Before starting from America Mr. Uhl married Miss Mary Barr, a native of this city, who, with a daughter, returns with him. In a letter to the Lutheran Observer, published at Philadelphia (and edited by Rev. F. W. Conrad, D. D., and Rev. Victor . Conrad, both old residents of this city,) the Rev. L. B. Wolf, in a letter from Guntoor, speaks, in what we are sure, are fitting terms of the faithful work done by Mr. Uhl as a teacher and pastor, and of the honors bestowed upon him before his departure for America. The last conference with his fellow-missionaries was held at Guntoor, March 5th, and Mr. Wolf states that no part of the work ever scaped his notice. Ever patient of details, and full of that charity that beareth all things, he made councils with his brethren and coworkers effective. At a meeting of the Guntoor congregation on Sunday, March 7th, the 1 elugu Christian community was addressed by Dr. Unangst, who was here, not long ago, and is well-known here, and others, and they spoke of Mr. Uhl's services in the mission and the fidelity which he showed in every position. Mr. Uhl had preached for more than five years to these people, having taken charge of the congregation from Dr. Unangst, and among those present on this occasion were many of his former and present pupils, so that his words fell like those of a father. Thoughts came quick and fast, as the speakers comterred the state of things at the time Mr. Uhl arrived at Guntoor, eleven years ago, and its prospects. But the greatest honor of all came from decidedly unexpected quarter. It was at a farewell mass meeting held in the grounds surrounding the church building at Guntoor, on the 14th of March. Every community in the city-Brahman, Pariah and all-was represented and all joined in common expressions of appreciation, praise and gratitude. After prayer was offered by Dr. Unangst, the Mohammedans presented an address through one of the teachers of the High school, formerly a pupil of Mr. Uhl, in which the work done by Mr. Uhl and the mission in opening a class of Mussulman boys, was fittingly spoken of and appreciated. This class has been growing in strength since the opening of the school to these boys, and although the Mussulman community is much more backward in education than the Hindu, still at this time the former are being represented in nearly all, if not all, the classes of the school.

with the present condition of the work

Then Mr. Tod, spoken of by Mr. Wolf, as the "manager of the Guntoor Municipality," and whom we suppose to be the mayor of the city, read an interesting address in which a tribute was paid to Mr. Uhl's abundant labors and fidehty.

by native boys, of unwritable and unpronouceable names, after which the regular. official address of the school boys-Mr. Uhl's old pupils-was read by K. Appialo Deikshutulu, a boy of the matriculation class, and is pronounced to have been "a well-written English address, for one of his years and experience." He spoke quite at length of Mr. Uhl as a gentleman, as a scholar, as an instructor of youths, and as the principal of the High School. He, as a matter of course, threw into the address the opinions of a pupil, and without doubt gave expression to the sentiments of his fellow-schoolmates in the most appreciative manner. The speaker did not fail to hit the real secret of his teacher's success. viz., fidelity to duty and persistence in carrying out his known duty, it mattered not how hard it was. Pastor John then read an excellent address on behalf of the Christian church, which it has been Mr. Uhl's privilege to help in building up. He, of course, could speak especially of the work of Mr. Uhl in the boardingschool and in the Telugu congregation, and in no timid way, considering the fact that he was surrounded by Brahmas and men more highly educated, did he lay his tribute of commendation upon the wreath which was being worn in honor of fidelity and patience. So far the fitting words nad been spoken, but the generous act remained yet to be done. Spontanegusly, encouraged by the missionaries, the people had made up a purse of not less than "Rs. 150," (how much this is, in dollars, we cannot say,) with which they had purchased a beautiful silver watch and a finely bound Oxford Bible, upon both of which they had engraved, "To Rev. Lemon L. Unl, from his former and present pupils," and upon the clasp of the Bible the additional words, "Love and Gratitude." To Mr. Uni's daughter they gave a finely wrought silver

Upon receiving these gitts we are told that Mr. Unl responded in a happy manner. He said that he felt he was the one chosen upon whom the people desired to bestow their appreciation for what the mission had done for Guntoor. He did not forget that he was simply a representative, and never seen, and whose voices had never sounded upon "India's coral strand," but whose acts shall be recorded in the book of God's remembrance. He felt unworthy of the honor and praise which his departure had called forth, and only wished that all those who took part in this meeting might learn what satisfaction comes in the performance of one's duty. He referred to the great Inspirer of all his acts, and to Him gave all the praise, who had permitted him to do this work. After a few remarks by the chairman, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Unanget, and the crowd began to disperse in their several directions amid most brilliant fireworks, which had been provided for the occasion. There must have been at least 600 people present, of every caste and complexion.

The final leave taking (on March 16) was very touching. More genuine hono could hardly be bestowed than crowned Mr. and Mrs. Uhl at the hour of their departure. Hundreds of people of all classes and castes crowded about them and mingled their farewells with tears.

Mr. and Mrs. Uhl will arrive here, in Springfield, at some time during the summer and will be warmly greeted. Mrs. Uhl is a sister of Mr. John S. Barr and the family will, as a matter of course, be his guests during the stay here.

An article from the pen of Mr. John W. Bookwalter, of this city, on "Trade Crises in America" covers one whole page and a third of another in Mr. Bookwalter's journal, "The Mechanical News," published at 110 Liberty street, New York. The article was written in and torwarded from Naples, Italy, on the 15th of April. Mr. Bookwalter says with truth that the way to prevent crises is to point out their causes in advance and persuade people to avoid them. This he assumes to do, in the following paragraph:

The deep underlying cause of the troubles which periodically afflict our trade and industry is the disadvantage which is thrown upo ity of producers and purchasers. Ot all those things which they produce they are compelled to dispose at what may be described as a natural price—that being the price fixed in the markets of the world by the great comprehensive law of supply and demand. That is the price at which their supplus must be sold in London and Havre, in competition with the cheap labor of Asia and South America; and the price of the surplus governs that of the whole crop. o her band, the price of nearly all the com-modities they are obliged to purchase is an artificial one, being determined by the fiat of legislation, and the benefit of open competition is rigidly deuted them. It scarcely needs to be argued that so inequitable an ar rangement as this not only places upon th tarmers of the United States an extremely oppressive burden, but must in its remotes effects so derange the business of the country all its branch s as to produce such alter nating periods of apparent prosperity and sharp distress as this generation has more han once experienced

That is one of Mr. Bookwalter's "oft told tales." He is a free trader, and these poor, oppressed farmers of America persist in being Protectionists.

The Interlachen Company, of which Mr. G. W. Hastings, of this city, is the heaviest stockholder, has nearly finished quite a large hotel, in Interlachen, Florida. It will have fifty sleeping rooms and will be two stories high, of the guests will have to up more than one pair stairs, and can get on to the ground easily in case of a fire. Mr. Hastings has been superintending the work. The house will have a competent manager and will be ready for occupation at the opening of for America before September. the next season. Interlachen is a handsome, thriving place, beautifully located, and belongs, principally, to Springfield men-Mr. Hastings, Mr. F. Holford, Dr. ing that he does not read the newspapers. E. V. Van Norman, Mr. Marshfield Steele, Mr. Camp, Mr. Jacob Seitz, Mr. Leonard Holman, Mr. Moler and others.

"Springfield," says the Grons-Repuntation will be found to be the Jhampion City for State Conventions." We believe it, too. There is rejoicing that the convention has been located at a wide-awake town. She will be fully equal to any demand that is likely to be made upon her in so small a mat-ter as that of a State Convention.

Wild Birds in Landon. All of us have herd pathetic stories of Australian gold-diggers or Canadian backwoodsmen moved to tears by the song of some imprisoned skylark, which reminded them of their English birthplace. It is to be feared that tears would not be so easily drawn from such emigrants as are of London origin, for he that spends all his days in London, with the exception, perhaps, of a week or so about the month of August, may very likely never have heard a lark sing in his life, unless from a cage, to the accompaniment of cart and carriage wheels. There are, however, still many birds to be heard and seen about the park and gardens of London; where, indeed, those which can find food in indeed, those which can hid tood in such places have, perhaps, a safer and more comfortable life than they can ever lead in the country. Man de-barred from the use of nets or guns is not very dangerous to creatures pos-s-sed of wings, and he drives away such four-footed enemies as stoats and weasels, while birds of prey, hawks, and magpies, avoid his presence, even in towns where it would be harmless.

Yet only one small bird, the sparrow, has deliberately chosen London for a dwelling-place. The pigeons which flutter about Westminster abbey and the British museum can not be considered wild birds any more than ducks on our ornamental waters. They receive much of their food at the hands of man, would have his Indian triends remember that in what he did he was backed by the loving service of thousand are descended from ancestors behavior as the ducks, with which it is feared that they are often confounded. The sparrow really has come unin-vited, and taken up his abode in Lon-don, resigning all innocent country pleasures for an adventurous, and not altogether honest, life in the streets. His sooty presence graces alike Seven Dials and Hyde Park corner: indeed, there is no class of Londoners who is so much at home in every part of London as he. He is the only one of us that dares enter the lion's den. Buns tempt him down into the bear-pit much more quickly than they tempt the bear It is perhaps the corrupting influence of a town life which has given to this bold bad bird the evil qualities which transportation has made worse. In Australia the sparrow has gone forth like a bushranger, with the vices of the town upon him, into the country, where he steals grain on a colossal scale and is established as a colossal

The following incident, given in "Marvels of Prayer," by the Rev. Hyatt Smith, was first published in a Scottish journal, and the editor vouched for the truth of the narrative. There is no connection between the incident and the title of the book, but young people will be interested to learn how dog out-witted his master. A gentle man in Glasgow owned a very intelli-gent Newfoundland dog. He accompanied his master wherever he went and was his inseparable companion in his visits and to church. One evening he gentleman went to visit a neighbor The dog attended him. It was quite late when the gentleman started for home, and, to his surprise, his dog could not be found. After the family had retired to bed there was a great noise in the kitchen. It was supposed hat burglars were robbing the house soon there was a crash and a smash like the breaking of a window, and then all was still. The morning revealed the mystery. The dog had fallen asleep under the table. He was sensible that his master had gone home, and the noise heard was the attempt of the dog to make his escape. As there was no other way to get out, the sagacious animal went through the window, taking the glass and frame with him. It was a long time before his master visited the house again. When he did, his dog accompanied him, and the animal found his way through the open door of the kitchen to his old hiding-place under the table. It was late when the master started for home. But neither his hat nor cane could be found. After a long search the dog was discovered fast asleep under the table; one paw was in his master's hat, the other on his master's cane. How he obtained possession of these articles no one could tell. He remembered his last visit to the place, and how scurvily he was treated. The sagacious creature resolved not to be left behind the next time. He knew that his master could not go home without his hat and cane, and that he would be quite likely to be awakened when his owner got ready to walk. His plans were acutely laid, and if he had possessed reason he could not have done better."
